

General Information – Surveys

Parent Surveys

Factors to address in your parent survey:

Involvement in Learning – Do families receive information to support their children's learning at home?

Communication – Do families have two-way, formal and informal channels of communication with teachers and administrators? Is the information presented clear, friendly, and consistent?

Leadership and Participation – Do families have a variety of ways to participate in the school through planning, leadership, and volunteering?

RTI/MTSS – Do parents in your district understand the multi-tiered system of supports? Do they feel they have voice in problem solving meetings?

Support Services – Do parents receive information about school and community support services?

Educational Quality – Do parents perceive that schools provide rigorous academics and individualized instruction?

School Climate – Do parents feel the school climate is welcoming and safe?

Teacher Surveys

One way to start improving your school's parent-school partnerships is by assessing present practices. The following questions can help you evaluate how well your school is reaching out to parents.

-Which partnership practices are currently working well at each grade level?

-Which partnership practices should be improved or added in each grade?

-How do you want your school's family involvement practices to look three years from now?

-Which present practices should change and which should continue?

-Which families are you reaching and which are hard to reach?
